Birkie Nine--The Long Wait for Snow Was Worth It!

It was a Winter of frustrating waits and precious little snow. But when it finally came, on the evening of the originally-scheduled February 21 Norwegian American Birkebeiner, it set the stage for one of the best Birkebeiners ever on March 7, much to the delight of the 3,300 starters.

An unseasonable Winter thaw, just a week before the original race, forced officials to postpone the major race from February 21 to March 7 after several days of round-the-clock efforts to prepare a trail for the race. "We did everything humanly possible," said Telemark's Tony Wise. "But there was just no hope!"

But the show must go on! To accommodate the several hundred elite skiers, Europeans and Americans who had already traveled great distances to Telemark, several shorter looped races were setup for February 20 and 21.

In a blistering 65-degree heat on February 20, Frenchman Jean-Paul Pierrat battled America's Bill Koch for nearly half of the 48-kilometer elite championship before Koch succumbed to the heat. Pierrat, who finished in 3:09:19.16, came in several minutes ahead of Norway's Jan-Frode Bjorkheim and Sweden's Sven-Ake Lundbaeck. Mike Devecka was the top American.

Marianna Hadler, a Norwegian immigrant who was living in Vermont, was the top first woman with Muffy Ritz, Carbondale, Colorado, the top American. Hadler finished in 3:57:32.42.

Over a hundred foreign competitors took part in the 42-kilometer event later that afternoon, with action being wrapped up on February 21 with another 42-kilometer event for the remaining skiers.

The races attracted an enthusiastic crowd of spectators as skiers passed by the Telemark Colosseum on every lap. Race announcers cheered the skiers in six languages as they went up and down the incredibly steep course.

Things were much different on March 7. More than a foot of snow fell in the days following February 21, leaving the entire course in excellent shape for the race.

Three-time Olympian Tim Caldwell, Putney, Vermont, became the first American champion since 1975, winning the March 7 race. Caldwell covered the 55-kilometer course from Telemark to Hayward in 2:23:16.90 - three minutes ahead of Norway's Bjorn Arvnes.

"Boy, the course was really fantastic," said former U.S. Olympic coach Marty Hall as he crossed the finish line. "The trail crews really did quite a job!"

Caldwell jumped to an early lead over Arvnes and Norway's Borre Fossli. Caldwell kept building his lead throughout the race for an easy victory. He and Arvnes, a former American Birkebeiner champion himself, were the pre-race favorites.

Muriel Gilman, Bemidji, Minnesota, was the woman's champion finishing 65th overall in 3:22:36.80. Gilman, who is a trainer at Bemidji State University, won a trip to the Norwegian Birkebeiner Rennet March 21 as the top American woman citizen skier. Steve Harrington, Duluth, Minnesota, also won a trip as the top American citizen skier, finishing tenth overall. Caldwell was the top American elite skier and also went to Norway, as did Muffy Ritz, who had won the top American elite women's title two weeks earlier.

Dan Cronen, Lakeville, Minnesota, was crowned champion of the 27.5-kilometer Telemark Kortelopet, winning in 1:22:17.80 - just two seconds ahead of Dan Williamson of Prior Lake, Minnesota. It was his first victory in the race.

Robin Brown, Apple Valley, Minnesota, brought the woman's Kortelopet title back to the family after a year's absence. Robin led the field in 1:31:03.20, five minutes ahead of Carol Warner of Excelsior, Minnesota. Robin's older sister Wendy was the 1979 Kortelopet champion. Wendy finished second in this year's Birkebeiner.

Although officials were disappointed in the postponement of the race, they were extremely pleased with the race itself. "We've heard quite a few good comments from racers," said race promoter Tony Wise. "Our contact with the skiers has been very favorable - everyone is very understanding of the situation. We really feel we did the best we could with the postponement and especially the race March 7. It was an excellent race!"

Although the goal of 6,000 to 7,000 skiers was not reachable in 1981, officials are looking forward to an even bigger field for the February 27, 1982 event.

Look for Birch Scroll This Fall

This season race officials have produced this special race result booklet in a form that can be kept as a souvenir for years to come. The traditional Birch Scroll newspaper, which has printed the results in the past, will be published between Summer and Fall with a special edition recapping 1981 and looking ahead to 1982 and the tenth Birkebeiner - February 27, 1982!

Lundbaeck Wins World Loppet Ski Series

Former Olympic gold medalist Sven-Ake Lundbaeck scored a decisive victory in the final World Loppet ski race of the year to win the 10-race international series. He outskied his nearest rival, Jean-Paul Pierrat of France, by a minute and a half in the 55-kilometer Birkebeiner Rennet March 22 in Norway.

1981 marked the first year Sweden's Lundbaeck had competed in the World Loppet. He skied in seven races, winning four and finishing second and third once. His final total over the required six races was a record 145. Pierrat finished second with 128 while defending champion Matti Kuosko had 119.

It was the third season for the World Loppet and by far the best ever in terms of attracting elite skiers. Nearly all of the ten races sported fields with former Olympic or World Championship medalists including Lundbaeck, Pierrat, American Bill Koch, Soviet Ivan Garanin and more. Seven elite skiers completed the grueling World Loppet elite requirements of skiing in at least six of ten races including one each in Scandinavia, Central Europe and North America.

It was also the first year that the title chase came down to the final race with Lundbaeck, Pierrat and Kuosko all having a shot at the elite title. Skiers faced difficult conditions at the Norwegian race with heavy snow at the start, changing to rain later in the race. Lundbaeck, who became the first non-Norwegian ever to win the race, skied the race in 3:16:25, edging defending Birkebeiner champion Dag-Arle Bjorkheim of Norway who was timed in 3:16:35. Kuosko finished well back in tenth - five minutes off the pace.

One of the highlights of the season was the performance of American Olympic medalist Bill Koch. Koch, who was second at the Riviere Rouge Race in his World Loppet debut, went on to win the Engadin Skimarathon, and finished seventh in the Vasaloppet despite breaking a pole at the start and a ski later in the race.

Even bigger things are ahead in coming years for the World Loppet, which will hold its annual meeting June 11-12 in Helsinki, Finland.

Thanks to NSC

A big thanks goes out to the companies of the Norwegian Ski Council, Haugen Nordic Products, Norfell, Inc., Normark Corp., Skandinavia, Inc., Northsport USA, NorTur, Inc., Skilom USA, and Swix Sport USA, for their support of the 1981 Norwegian American Birkebeiner.

The companies, which are the American distributors of Norwegian ski products, were very helpful in providing race support including a host of special clinics and services for racers at each of the four 1981 Birkebeiner races.

Telemark officials are optimistic that the companies will return next year to make Norwegian American Birkebeiner X an even bigger success!

Jean-Paul Pierrat

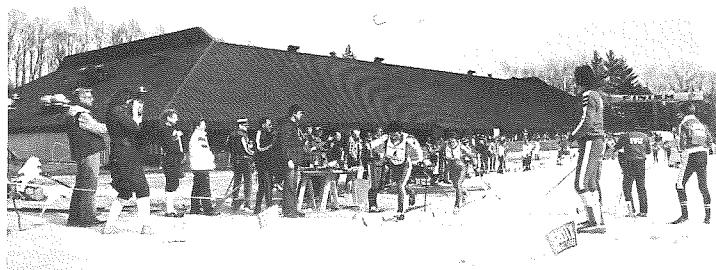

It wasn't the start of thousands that had been expected, but this hardy group of elite skiers weathered 60-65 degree temperatures in the elite class of the February 20 Norwegian American Birkebeiner.

Tor Erik Haanes-Larsen of the Norwegian Ski Council makes his way up the narrow path of snow.

Jean-Paul Pierrat charges past the spectators in front of the Telemark Colosseum, hardly bothered by the sweltering heat.

Norway's Marianna Hadler (top), took women's honors in the elite race, followed by Carbondale, Colorado skier Muffy Ritz (bottom). Ritz, who was the top American woman, won a trip to the Birkebeiner Rennet, posting one of the best finishes ever by an American woman.

Green Mountain

Valley School

NEW NORDIC PROGRAM

The Green Mountain Valley School
(EST. 1973)

A college preparatory ski academy located in the Sugarbush/Mad River Valley of Vermont.

With a full year in the making, The Green Mountain Valley School has developed a cross country program which will complement its eight years of expertise as an alpine academy.

Heading up the nordic program is Jim Fredericks, Eastern Jr. Olympic Coach and nordic coach of eight years experience.

Openings for the 81-82 programs will be filled soon. For further information call 802/496-2150 or 4265; GMVS, RR1, Box 166, Waitsfield, Vermont 05673.
